

LAWEEKLY

February 1, 2006

Motorin!

By Lina Lecaro

Wednesday, February 1, 2006 - 4:12 pm

MOTORIN!

Just when you thought the '80s revival was starting to chill, the musical Rock of Ages is here to reheat the heshier love. This headbangin'-to-the-oldies revue, which opened at The Vanguard on Saturday, features tunes by everyone from Pat Benatar to Whitesnake, and a cast including Tenacious D's Kyle Gass and Wicked's Laura Bell Bundy. But the real rock-star power was in the audience: We spotted longhair has-beens from Ratt, LA Guns, Dokken and Warrant (all of whom still work the bad-boy look, and ya gotta respect 'em for that!) — not to mention Perry Farrell and one Miss Debbie Gibson. Speaking of surreal, Nightranger even came face-to-face with the dudes from a little band called Night Ranger. In a surreality-related incident, we chatted up rhinestoned rawker CeCe Deville, who dished he'll be on the next season of The Surreal Life — and “it's all about me trying to mount Florence Henderson.” Now that's a Very Brady Moment we have to see . . . Riding the nostalgia train from metal to mayhem, we ended the eve at The Dragonfly, where punk cover band Shithead, featuring members of The Chelsea Smiles (who are rumored to be calling it quits), Sepultura and Bad Religion, tore into classics by the Dead Boys, Fear Cult and Motörhead, and welcomed Slipknot's Corey Taylor (unmasked!) and Anthrax's Scott Ian onstage. Keep your ears perked for this outfit's next gig, 'cause they are, indeed, the shit.

CeCe Deville 'talks dirty to me' about his career.